JOKES ON US

Now that I'm "older," here's what I've discovered:

1. I started out with nothing, and I still have most of it.
2. I finally got my head together, now my body is falling apart.
3. All reports are in; life is now unfair.
4. It is easier to get older than wiser.
5. Some days you're the dog; some days you're the hydrant.
6. I wish the buck stopped here; I sure could use a few.
7. It's hard to make a comeback when you haven't been anywhere.
8. The only time the world beats a path to your door, you're in the bathroom.
9. When I'm finally holding all the cards, why does everyone decide to play chess?
10. It's not hard to meet expenses – they're everywhere.

From the Editor:

Dear Houston Senior Citizens and Friends:

Thank you for keeping up with your renewal payments, however we recently received a few renewal checks without a "Renewal" form. We need the forms for our record, so when it's due, please do not forget to fill out the renewal form and mail it with your check or money order. The form is on the back page of the Newsletter. Thanks.

By the way some of you wrote a short note lately, saying enjoyable reading and keep up good work. Again I want to say THANK YOU from all of us, the staff. We all enjoy our work with the newsletter.

Hey, time surely is flying fast, and the end of Daylight Savings. So do not forget to do that at bedtime or at 2:00 AM of October 31st to turn your clocks back an hour.

Have a pleasurable autumn time and Happy Halloween.

A 4-year-old-boy ran up to his mother at the beach and led her to where a sea gull lay dead in the sand.

“Mom, what happened to him?” the little boy asked.

“He died and went to heaven,” she replied.

The boy thought for a moment and then said, “And God threw him back down?”

Focus your fuzzy eyes: If you have been spending a lot of time in front of a computer screen lately, chances are your eyes are feeling the strain. Find a spot of the wall about 10 feet away from your screen and, every 10 minutes or so, glance up at it, bringing the headlines into focus, then go back to your work. And take a 15 minute break for every two hours you’re staring at a screen.

In my computer office, there are the pictures of my children, grandkids, family and friends hanging on the wall and some sitting on the desk. When I need a break, I always look at them in one spot at a time and think good memories of them.

Field Trip to Cuero, TX

On Friday, September 10th, Houston Deaf Senior Citizens went on a field trip to Cuero, TX. It was a nice, beautiful day to go sightseeing. They toured at DeWitt County Historical Museum (picture taken not permitted inside the house), Cuero Heritage Museum, and three churches: St. Michael's Catholic, Grace Episcopal and St. Mark's Lutheran. These three out of four churches are the most photographic buildings in Texas.

← DeWitt County Historical Museum had unique and old-fashioned clothes. The children's bedroom has different kinds of dolls like paper and real little dolls on bookshelves and doll clothes hanging on strings.

St. Michael's Catholic Church was built in 1931, originally, the church was erected 1876 but it was destroyed by the hurricane. →

Stained-glass windows

← Grace Episcopal Church was built in 1889 on land donated by C. C. Howerton. The steeple topped with a cross has been covered with copper.

Cuero Heritage Museum has its own annual event called "32nd Annual Cuero Turkeyfest" which will be on October 8-10, 2004.

← Cloaked in royal red and gold, the elaborate beaded turkey was appliquéd on a robe in 1972. (man wears cloak, see picture on right)

→ St. Mark's Lutheran Church ship's bell was installed as a different sizes of bells hanging was built in 1939 and an old copper prayer bell. There were three at top of the church.

10 Practical Tips to Help a Friend through Grief

Source: INROADS Behavioral Health Services of Texas, L.P., A Magellan Behavioral Health Company

1. Contact the person as soon as possible. Don't assume he or she is fine or that closer friends or relatives are enough to fill the void.
2. Most often, they cannot think straight, so avoid judgment of the grief-stricken (unless they become physically harmful to themselves or those around them.)
3. Remember that shock may carry the bereaved through the first few days.
4. Encourage talking and reminiscing. Bring up good memories.
5. Their feelings may be erratic. Be careful about offering advice or suggestions.
6. Encourage and/or allow tears. Crying is normal and healthy reaction to grief. Provide a shoulder to lean on and tissues.
7. Be aware of what might be needed; don't expect to be asked.
8. Don't relate their loss to losses you may have experienced. It's not your grief, and your coping style and feelings are not exactly like anyone else's.
9. Avoid clichés and religious references unless otherwise indicated. Consider a hug or simply a heartfelt "I'm sorry."
10. Listen, listen and listen. Just be there when possible to support them.

Letter from Inah M Jones:

Dear Houston Deaf Newsletter...

Let you know that I am back at my home: 402 Live Oak, Gatesville, TX 76528 now after I had been staying with my daughter, Martha at 2520 Mears Dr, Gatesville. The reason I stayed with her that was I got hurt at my home some weeks before Christmas 2003. I'm glad to be back home by myself since January 3, 2004.

I had a stroke on June 18, 1970 and since then I have been slow getting around. I'm making it OK at home by myself although paralyzed on my left side and I can't use my left hand. I use my right hand often.

I turned 85 years old on August 23, 2004 and can't believe it.

I was in Class 1933 of TSD. I remember my classmates – David Miller, William Bible, Lewis Williams; they're all passed away. Also Lorena Page in my class – I don't know if she is still alive or not.

I do not want to miss reading HDSC newsletter.

Trip to Cancun, Mexico: Submitting by Opal Piercy

Eugene and I flew to Cancun, Mexico for the wedding of our granddaughter, Sandy, from August 26th to the 28th. The wedding was unusual to us. Had a judge who could not speak English and they had an English interpreter for the wedding ceremony. We stayed at the Iberostar Paraiso Beach Hotel which is a beautiful resort about 45 minutes drive from the airport. Lovely place and we had a great time, but just too much walking for us oldies.

All went well and it's a wonderful vacation spot for the younger generation, so start saving and go there one day. Harry and family had been there before and that's why Sandy wanted her wedding there. Polly went along with her friend, so it was a family trip for us.

To our surprise, about 47 friends were there for the wedding, too. The weather was hot like Houston, but everything was A/C, so we had a good rest. We have lots of pictures to show so if you want to see them, just ask and we will be glad to show them off.

Frank Shaw:

On Thursday, September 9th Frank Shaw went to see his doctor for check up and was sent to the emergency room due to pneumonia and fluids in the lung. Then he was admitted in the hospital and a couple of days later the pneumonia and fluids went away, but his oxygen levels went down.

The doctor told him that he has to use a portable oxygen machine all the time, 24 hours, for everywhere he goes. He has to stay indoors during hotter weather and especially if there is a bad ozone alert.

He was sent home on Sept 14th and on the 16th his doctor checked on him and was surprised that his breathe is improving. He decided the heart stent are not need right this time. A surgery for aneurysm has to hold off for a while. The doctor want to wait for a month or so; it depends on his breathing continues to improve.

What makes Ruth run, Jump, and throw? Ruth Seeger

Steve C. Baldwin, SIGNews Contributor - July 2004

Whether 80-year-old Ruth Mae Taubert Seeger runs, jumps or throws at any senior track and field meet, she is definitely a strong candidate to be the poster female athlete for all senior citizens.

Unless you are a lifetime fitness buff, most retired seniors prefer to hit the road to a winter haven, not the high jump crossbar or broad jump board. The most they will ever throw is a Nerf ball to their grandchildren or a handful of playing cards in triumph or frustration. When she was sixty-seven years old, Seeger decided that the rocking chair, leisure lifestyle and sunset activities could not match her metabolism and desire to remain physically active.

Four years after she retired from teaching and coaching at Texas School for the Deaf in 1986, Seeger decided to coach herself in all field events. Today, she throws the discus, javelin and shot put, good enough to break some national senior game records in her two age groups. After the throwing events, she goes for the running long or triple jump and high jump events. From 1991 to 2004, Seeger garnered a grand total of 294 medals, including 274 golds, 18 silvers and 2 bronzes. As recently as May, she won a total of 10 gold medals, despite bad weather and lack of competitors. Statistically speaking, that's more than 22 medals a year for the first 13 years of partaking in senior games at the local, state and national level. Come the fall of 2004, Seeger should break the 300-medal mark.

Seeger has the unique distinction of being inducted in not just one, but seven halls of fame as an athlete, coach and sports leader. In 1975, she was inducted into the American Athletic Association (now the U.S.A. Deaf Sports Federation) Hall of Fame as the first deaf female coach. In 1988, Texas Governor William P. Clements inducted Seeger into the Texas Women's Hall of Fame as athletic coach. Five more halls of fame inductions came her way during the 1990s, especially in 1999, when she was honored in Temple, Texas, as the newest member of the Texas Senior Games Hall of Fame. Throughout all those unique inductions, she has long been widely recognized as a successful coach, versatile senior athlete and role model for thousands of young girls.

Speaking of role models, it is well known to those who know Seeger that Mildred "Babe" Didrikson-Zaharias (1914-1956) has been her life-long role model. Didrikson-Zaharias, an extraordinary, natural athlete from Port Arthur, Texas, is considered to be America's greatest female athlete. Seeger practically idolized Babe since her Minnesota days and followed Babe's career faithfully. This heroine-worship is what energized Seeger for so long and now Seeger herself is basically playing and enjoying the role of Didrikson-Zaharias as an Olympics champion, especially at the senior level.

Asked how she wanted to be remembered the most, such as being called the "deaf Babe," Seeger pauses for a moment, then says, "Gee, all I can think of is how mighty proud I am of all my girls over the years. That's all I want to be remembered for." The TSD gymnasium wasn't named in her honor in 1988 for naught. The Seeger Gymnasium is a testimony of her love for her "girls," athletics, sports equality and healthy living during the golden years.

News from Frances White:

Hello Friends:

I am at home after spending almost seven weeks at Settlers Ridge Care Center in Celine, 12 miles north of Frisco. I have a new-fangled walker to get around with. It has a basket on it to carry things and a seat to sit on if you get tired. In time, I will graduate to a cane and after that be on my own again. This weird accident was something we never dreamed would happen, for you see, I was supposed to be taking care of Ralph. Instead, he has had to take care of me! Vicki and John have been wonderful about sending over food and doing errands for us. For a long time we wondered if we could have made it in Austin, but now, more than ever, we know we did right to come up here. Still, in our hearts we feel Austin is really our home. We have received many e-mails, letters, beautiful cards, faxed messages, TTY calls, flowers, balloons and visits. Your prayers and kind thoughts have touched us deeply. We feel very fortunate to have so many wonderful friends. Please accept our sincere appreciation for all you have done for us. It is our wish that someday we will see all of you again.

With much love, Frances

LAUGHTER, THE BEST MEDICINE

OPEN CAPTIONED MOVIE

Adam returned home late one night, and Eve confronted him at the door.

"You're seeing another woman, aren't you?" she accused.

"Don't be silly," he replied. "You're the only woman on earth."

Later, while half-asleep, Adam felt a tickle on his chest. "What are you doing?" he asked Eve.

"Counting your ribs."
