April was National Garden Month. Houston Deaf Senior Citizens group had a field trip to visit Lady Bird Wildflower Center in Austin, seeing a variety of beautiful plants, including bluebonnets. The garden sure gives us some ideas to do gardening on our own. (See page 5 – Field Trip article)

Steve Sirois brought an article to share with Karen Clifton. USA Today newspaper states that Ruth Rogers Clausen, the editor at Country Living Gardener magazine shares her favorites places to visit. Lady Bird Wildflower Center is listed as one of the 10 great places to visit. The 10 places are:

- 1) Bellingrath Gardens in Theodore, Alabama, www.bellingrath.org;
- 2) Filoli Center in Woodside, California, www.filoli.org;
- 3) Stonecrop Gardens in Cold Spring, N.Y., www.stonecrop.org;
- 4) Kingwood Center in Mansfield, Ohio, www.kingwoodcenter.org;
- 5) Lady Bird Wildflower Center in Austin, TX, www.wildflower.org;
- 6) Garden in the Woods in Framingham, Mass., www.newfs.org;
- 7) Longwood Gardens in Kennet Square, PA, www.longwoodgardens.org;
- 8) Longue Vue Gardens in New Orleans, www.longuevue.com;
- 9) The Jewel Box, St. Louis, www.stlouis.missouri.org/citygov/parks/jewelbox;
- 10) Dumbarton Oaks in Washington, DC, www.doaks.org.

You can visit the website of their garden or visit them if you happen to be in the area. Every spring season in Houston, TX, especially in River Oaks area, are some gardens with beautiful azaleas flowers. You can drive by for the sight.

NEWS

NEWS FROM JUDY LORENZ:

In January 2003 Bubba had a nice anniversary party for 35 years of service at Halliburton. His bosses, supervisors, Co-workers including CEO, who happened to be in town, friends, and family were present to watch him receive a gold pin with four diamonds, a crystal clock, a crystal statue and a Rolex watch. They gave a speech about him and how well he worked. They also said it was a pleasure to see a person stay dedicated for such a long time. They served cake, peanuts, mints and punch. Bubba and I were surprised to have an interpreter. It was an even bigger surprise to have Mary Ella Redman as our surprise interpreter! We all had a great time together.

NOTE FROM BETTY SPARKS:

Hello All! Hope this will find you all doing well.

I would like to say that the staff of SC Newsletter does well and enjoy reading it to know how old friends are doing. Keep up the fine job for Houston Deaf Senior Citizens.

I always think of my oldest friends and let all of you know that I'm doing fine.

Happy Easter Day & Bless all of you. Love, Betty

50th WEDDING ANNIVERSARY BY GERTRUDE SESSIONS:

We had our 50th wedding anniversary at Dennis, our middle son's house on Saturday, April 5. There were about 100 relatives, friends and children in all. They had fajitas catered by a Mexican restaurant and they were delicious.

When time came to open the gifts, my four sisters played a joke on me. They had wrapped an old broken coffeepot with an ugly plastic flower sticking out of it. Everyone laughed and thought it was so funny to see my shocked reaction to such a terrible gift. My sisters had saved the coffeepot from the trash when we were going through our mother's things after her funeral. They thought it would be funny to give it to me as a prank & joke for our party. My third sister will be the next in our family to celebrate 50 years of marriage. I am planning to return the coffeepot back to her anniversary. Everyone really enjoyed himself or herself and we enjoyed everyone who came. Gertie & Travis

DEAF CLIMBER DROPS OUT OF EVEREST TEAM: From Houston Chronicle; Submitting by Hazel Richard

DALLAS---The team of people with disabilities trying to climb Mount Everest, the world's tallest mountain, is down by one. Mark Gobble, 28, is returning home to Austin to be closer to his family. The team is making the 23-day trek to Mount Everest's base camp in hopes that traveling through the remote, harsh environment would shake common assumptions about what is possible for people with disabilities.

Gobble, a teach for the Texas State School for the Deaf, left the group March 20, four days into the journey through the high Himalayan Mountains to the foot of Mount Everest. He said he was uncomfortable being away from his wife and family during wartime and away from other deaf people.

Gobble told the Dallas Morning News that the trek was the longest he had ever spent without daily interaction with others who are deaf. He long has had contact at school, work and social settings with people who can hear, but he said, "I always got to go back to the deaf world.... I need that environment."

The nine remaining Americans with disabilities said they are disappointed by Gobble's departure.

Gary Guller, 36, of Austin, leader of the Team Everest'03 Challenge Trek, said he would continue with a four-person summit team. Most of the team plans to climb to the 17,500-foot base camp. Then Guller and a few others will attempt to continue to the peak. If successful, Guller—an experienced climber—would be the first person with one arm to stand atop the 29,035-foot Mount Everest. The trip coincides with the 50th anniversary of the first successful climb to the top of Mount Everest.

Health Tips

WARNING SIGNALS OF STROKE: By American Heart Association – www.americanheart.org

Stroke is a Medical Emergency!
Dial 911

If you notice one or more of these signals, don't wait. Get immediate medical attention. The faster you call an ambulance and get to the hospital, the greater your chance of limiting brain injury.

- Sudden weakness or numbness of the face, arm or leg on one side of the body.
- Sudden dimness or loss of vision, particularly in one eye.
- Loss of speech, or trouble talking or understanding speech.
- Sudden severe headaches with no apparent cause.
- Unexplained dizziness, unsteadiness or sudden falls, especially along with any of the previous signals.

About 10% of strokes are preceded by "temporary strokes" (transient ischemic attacks or TIAs) days, weeks or even months before a major stroke. The usual symptoms of a TIA last 24 hours or less. TIAs are extremely important warning signs for stroke and shouldn't be ignored. People who've had TIAs are about 10 times more likely to have a stroke than people of the same age and sex who haven't had a TIA.

Field Trip to Austin

On April 11, 2003, 24 Houston Senior Citizens toured outside of basement at the sunset red granite Capitol. The building stands as a symbol of the famous spirit of Texas.

Right ~ guess who was tour guide? The young lady, Joanna, is the daughter of deaf parents, Mr. & Mrs. John Rodenberg of Dallas. She showed us around the Capitol. Left ~ the interpreter, Sandra Potter.

After lunch buffet, we visited Lady Bird Wildflower Center, founded in 1982 by Lady Bird Johnson and the late Helen Hayes.

See background: all the stones used in the buildings are native to the Hill Country, and each architectural style reflects the region's early settlers. Three styles of architecture influenced the design: Buildings made of the darker sandstone represent Spanish mission style, lighter, neater limestone buildings represent the building style of German settlers, and the tin roof represents ridged, ready-made tin buildings of 20th century ranchers.

Karen Clifton spotted and took picture of this lazy turtle on the pond stretching its leg and arm. This is really cool!

At 100, Deaf Elder Looks Back

By Greg Livadas

Democrat and Chronicle

(January 24, 2003) — Clifford Leach was born the same year Henry Ford organized the Ford Motor Co. and the Wright brothers' plane lifted off at Kitty Hawk.

"I know so much history and have seen so many things," said Leach, who turns 100 today. He's most amazed by the advances in technology.

Deaf since contracting whooping cough when he was 18 months old, Leach feels blessed that technology has enabled deaf people to communicate more easily. He recalls that a traveling minister sold him a huge text telephone, or TTY, in the late 1950s. It was the first time he could use a telephone to communicate with someone else.

"What a wonderful convenience it was," he said, using sign language.

Leach, of Greece, was one of nine children born on a farm in Moatsville, W.Va. His mother died in 1912, and his father two years later. He graduated in 1924 from the West Virginia Schools for the Deaf and Blind in Romney, W.Va., and is a member of its baseball Hall of Fame.

Leach moved to Binghamton to work for the Public Works Department. He was an outfielder in a semi-pro baseball league there and is proud of his .408 batting average one season.

"All my life, I've been a sports fan," Leach said. He excelled in baseball, softball, golf and bowling, which he gave up at age 90, when he also gave up driving.

In 1941, Leach was one of 16 deaf workers hired as assembly workers by IBM in Endicott, near Binghamton. Prior to that, the company had hired four deaf workers, but had shied away from hiring more because the deaf people would scream during lunch hour, he said.

"The government said they had to hire people with disabilities, so they hired us. The personnel department was very satisfied with us and we turned their opinion," he said. "The 16 of us opened up the way for more deaf employees."

SHAWN DOWD

Clifford Leach uses sign language at his Greece home to talk about his long life. At 100, the former semi-pro baseball player remains an activist for the deaf. "He really cares," said an acquaintance. [Day in Photos]

Leach retired from IBM at age 65 and moved to Avon, Livingston County, nearer to relatives of his wife, Ruth, whom he married in 1975. His first wife, Helen Larkin, died in 1972 of cancer.

"I was tired of being in the same old place," Leach said. "I really liked it here because of the many deaf people in the community."

He's always been active in associations for the deaf, including the National Fraternal Society of the Deaf, the National Association of the Deaf and the Empire State Association of the Deaf.

"He is a very, very friendly and smart man," said Frank Kimmes of Greece, president of Deaf Elders Around Rochester. He said for years, Leach -- possibly the most senior deaf elder in the state -- has encouraged deaf people to stand up for their rights and not be afraid to approach lawmakers to make positive changes.

"He always cares about the deaf," Kimmes said.

Leach's days now are spent reading, watching television, walking when he can and eating in restaurants with his friends as much as he can.

He and his wife are settling into a new apartment off West Ridge Road after the one they had lived in for more than 15 years was heavily damaged in an electrical fire in November. They weren't injured, but had to flee with just the clothes they were wearing.

Leach was slowed a bit from a fall a few years ago which injured his head, but he still walks unaided, easily rises from his chair and makes each of his monthly doctor checkups.

Asked whether there are more things he'd like to do, he said: "I want to go on a space flight, go on another planet and populate it with deaf people."

He shrugs when asked the secret to his longevity. He said he was a heavy drinker until 20 years ago, and smoked five cigars a day for 45 years.

"I thought, 'Where'd my money go?' I should have saved it for a good cause or invested it. I smoked it all up," he said.

Leach plans to celebrate his birthday quietly with friends and relatives. His only surviving sibling, a sister, Elsie Cross, 93, is visiting from Maryland.

And he'll continue regularly playing euchre with his wife at the Rochester Recreation Club for the Deaf on Lyell Avenue.

"One thing I can do is play cards," he signed with a smile. "I keep going."
